

Birding with Kevin Cook

Sponsored by
Fort Collins Audubon Society

Two New Classes for Fall 2005!

Birding for Beginners

A four-week birding class for beginners will be offered during October 2005. Topics will include how to find and observe birds, how to use field guides more effectively, how to select and use optical equipment, and most importantly, how to have more fun with the birding time and experiences you have. This class is intended for people who are just awakening to the pleasures of birding.

Birding after the Beginning

A four-week birding class during November 2005 will address the next step for birders who have made their start and are eager to advance. With a special slant toward winter birding, the class will focus on challenging groups such as hawks, gulls, and sparrows to highlight such identification factors as age, geographic variability, seasonality, and color oddities.

Field Trips are being arranged now, and the dates and cost will be announced soon. Visit this website or call Kevin at 223-8392 on MWF afternoons or any evening.

Class Dates

- Birding for Beginners: Monday evenings in October - Oct. 3, 10, 17, 24
- Birding after the Beginning: Monday evenings in November - Nov 7, 14, 21, 28

Class Meeting Time and Place

- Class Time: 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.
- Location: JAX Outdoor Gear, 1200 N. College Ave., Fort Collins, in the conference room. (map)

Cost

- Per session paid separately: $7 for Fort Collins Audubon Society members, $8 for nonmembers (Join now!)
- Entire class paid at once: $26 for Fort Collins Audubon Society members, $30 for nonmembers (Join now!)

Registration

Call Kevin Cook at 223-8392 on MWF afternoons or any evening for full details.